1. Claims 1-3, 5-13, and 15-29 are presented for examination.
2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3, 5-13, and 15-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 (a) as being unpatentable over Compton et al. (Compton) patent no. 6,115,035, in view of Hatori patent no. 5,778,382, and Wesinger, Jr. et al. (Wesinger) patent no. 5,778,367.

4. As to claim 1, Compton teaches the invention substantially as claimed, including a method comprising:

automatically searching, on a plurality of web sites, for streaming video files (col. 2 lines 11-25; col. 3 lines 33-46; col. 4 lines 30-42; col. 5 lines 5-28; search engine inherently searches plurality of web sites); selecting particular streaming video files from said plurality of web sites based on a text search using keywords (Compton, col. 3 lines 33-46; col. 4 lines 30-42; col. 5 lines 5-27; search engine inherently use text search using keywords search on plurality of web sites. Inherent teaching can be found in Wesinger, Jr. et al. patent no.

5,778,367; Wesinger, col. 2 lines 8-16; col. 9 lines 55-65); and in response to said search, automatically generating a graphical user interface including representations of said selected streaming video files for display (Compton, col. 4 lines 43-65; col. 7 line 16-27).

However, Compton does not explicitly teach organizing said streaming video files representations by said keywords for display.

Hatori teaches using keyword to denote a retrieval-result display area for displaying items of data retrieved with searched keyword (Hatori, figure 9; Abstract, col. 4 lines 30-48).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Data Processing art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Compton and Hatori to organize said streaming video files representations by said keywords for display because it would allow items of data with the keyword are displayed at a predetermined area on a display screen.

5. As to claim 2, Compton teaches automatically searching for streaming video files includes automatically searching for predetermined file extensions associated with streaming video files (col. 4 lines 43-65, fig 3).

6. As to claim 3, Compton teaches automatically searching for streaming video files includes automatically searching for streaming video file extensions and for keywords in web sites associated with said streaming video files (Compton, col. 4 lines 30-42).

7. As to claim 5, Compton and Hatori teach the invention substantially as claimed as discussed above. In addition, Hatori teaches aid video files displayed in association with corresponding categories (Hatori, figure 9; Abstract, col. 4 lines 30-48).

However, Compton and Hatori do not explicitly teach displaying said representations of keywords in a column and said representations of video files in rows.

Hatori teaches displaying representations of retrieval conditions in a column and representations of image files in rows (Hatori, figure 12).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Data Processing art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Compton and Hatori to display said representations of keywords in a column and said representations of video files in rows because it would display retrieval results in conventional way.

8. As to claims 6-7, Compton and Hatori teach representing each video file by a thumbnail frame, and playing said video file in response to a user selection of said thumbnail video (Compton, col. 4 lines 43-65; col. 7 line 16-27; Hatori, figure 9; Abstract, col. 4 lines 30-48).

9. As to claims 8-10, Compton and Hatori teach using said keywords as category icons and displaying a plurality of video files associated with each category icon, accessing said video file over the Internet in response to a user selection of said video file, and periodically automatically searching for streaming video files (Reilly, figure 10, col. 13 line 28 - col. 14 line 16).

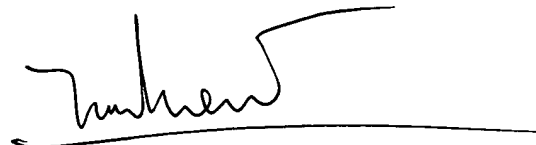

10. As to claim 24, Compton and Reilly teach automatically searching the Internet includes automatically transmitting a request to a remote web server for a search engine to perform said Internet search (Compton, col. 4 lines 30-65; col. 7 line 16-27; Hatori, figure 9; Abstract, col. 4 lines 30-48).

11. Claims 11-13, 15-23, and 25-29 have similar limitations as claims 1-3, 5-10 and 24; therefore, they are rejected under the same rationale.

12. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Le H. Luu whose telephone number is 571-272-3884. The examiner can normally be reached on 7:00am - 4:30pm.
